

Searchlight Display at Night on the River.

WHEN darkness came over all and the mighty host of more than a million persons had departed from the neighborhood of the Tomb, the searchlights of the war vessels, anchored in the North River opposite, played on the massive marble arch and Tomb and made a most beautiful picture of light and shadow. The marble columns and dome stood out boldly in pure white, while the background was pitchy darkness—darker than any artist's brush ever painted.

For half an hour the multitude of Harlemites who were attracted by the spectacle stood in silent admiration. Then a shout arose from this throng and the lights were withdrawn. The powerful reflectors were turned up and down the stream, illuminating the vessels as they lay on the water. After another half hour the streaks of light were withdrawn and the shades of night again fell over all.

BRILLIANT END OF AN EVENTFUL DAY.

Dazzling Scenes Presented at the Reception of the Union League Club to the President and the City's Guests.

When the President of the United States, leaning on the arm of General Horace Porter, stepped out of a landau in front of the Union League Club at 9:45 last night the crowd in the street cheered, the little musicians of the Mexican band, led by their big major, lined up at the curbstone opposite, played "Hail to the Chief!" splendidly in their instruments, dark and battered by age and wear, and the officers and men of the regular army, resplendent with gilt braid and plumes, on the stairs presented arms.

In the interior of the clubhouse flags draped around shields, twisted around columns, placed like tapestry on the walls, portraits of Presidents and generals, wall roses in large squares and circles, tall lilacs and palm trees in boxes, shone with exquisite freshness. In the vestibule the Seventh Regiment Band played national airs.

A Brilliant Gathering. When the President entered, the members of the club scattered in the smoking room and in the halls came to welcome him with cheers. The President bowed, smiled, shook hands which were extended to him and followed General Porter to the reception room.

Behind them marched Governor Black, Senator Sherman, for whom a voice of recognition on the sidewalk had provided a cheer, and a host of Ambassadors, with their emblems of orders of chivalry; soldiers in uniform, statesmen, men of business, men of wealth. In a corner of the vestibule, under a flag, Joseph Jefferson's face appeared, radiant.

President McKinley and Vice-President Hobart received the members and their guests in the meeting room on the second floor. General Horace Porter, the newly appointed Ambassador to the Netherlands, and the club introduced those present to the chief officers of the nation. During the reception the Seventh Regiment and Hungarian bands played popular selections.

At 11 o'clock the Presidential party entered the alcove dining room and partook of the following collation:

The Day's Casualties.

When the number of people is considered, the casualties of yesterday were comparatively few and deaths were rare. Fortunately the day was cool, with a bracing wind blowing. Otherwise the ambulances held in readiness would have been kept busy. In a few cases the excitement, or something else equally effective, overcame one's victims, who were yanked away in ambulances and patrol wagons and resuscitated.

DINED TOGETHER.

Mrs. Abner McKinley Entertained the President's Wife at the Windsor.

UNIQUE FLORAL DISPLAY.

During the Evening the President, with General Porter, Made His Appearance.

A distinguished dinner party was given last evening at the Hotel Windsor by Mrs. Abner McKinley, in honor of Mrs. McKinley, the wife of the President.

The party was composed entirely of ladies and, while they were dining, the husbands of most of them were at the big dinner at the Union League Club.

They gathered in the large octagon parlor of the hotel, and at a quarter of nine o'clock walked two by two to the private banquet room, which had been beautifully decorated for the event. The wife of the President led the procession, walking with Mrs. W. L. Strong, the wife of the Mayor, and the last two were Mrs. Abner McKinley and Mrs. Robert P. Porter.

A large table was set in the middle of the room, and Mrs. McKinley was given the seat at the head, with Mrs. Strong at her right and Mrs. Abner McKinley at her left. At the foot of the table sat Mrs. General Porter, with Mrs. Lyman J. Case at her right and Mrs. Frederick R. Grant at her left. The ladies occupying the other seats on the right of the table were Mrs. General Russell, Mrs. John E. Milholland, Mrs. E. H. Wetherby, Mrs. William S. Hawk, Mrs. William McKinley (Abner), Governor and Major Woods, of Virginia, Mrs. Borden, Mrs. Sixton and Mrs. A. A. Pope, of Cleveland, while the remaining ladies on the left of the table were Mrs. J. P. Morgan, Mrs. McKim, Mrs. D. Parker Morgan, Mrs. Whitehall, Mrs. John H. Starn, Frederick D. Tappan, Assistant Secretary of the Navy, General J. P. Morgan, Morgan, Chauncey M. Depew, General Fred. Grant, U. S. Grant, Jr.

Attorney-General McKenna was escorted to the club by John J. McCook, who was the candidate of the Sugar Trust for Attorney-General. Warner Miller escorted Secretary of the Navy, General J. P. Morgan, Morgan, Chauncey M. Depew, General Fred. Grant, U. S. Grant, Jr.

The table was beautifully decorated, and the white roses and blue carnations, which were the national colors in the shape of red tulips, white roses and blue carnations. There was also a display of flowers in English ferns. Another unique flower feature was a great bank of long stemmed American Beauty roses, so arranged as to be taken apart in the form of corsage bouquets, to be given to the guests.

The chandeliers and the candelabras were entwined with smilax and a delicate green plant in such a way as to give a most charming effect. The walls were handsomely decorated with American bunting.

THE GREATEST OF ALL DEMONSTRATIONS.

Prominent Men Declare That Nothing Like It Was Ever Seen in This Country—Republicans Are Grateful.

Without exception the prominent men interviewed last night pronounced the parade a grand affair, greatly to the credit of New York and reflecting the gratitude of the country for the services of General Grant to his country. Here are some of the opinions:

Governor Cooke, Connecticut.—The ceremonies were magnificent beyond anticipation or conception.

Senator Hawley, Connecticut.—I have simply to say that the Committee of the Senate has only praise and thanks for these gentlemen who met our party in Washington, who joined us at Jersey and who conducted us to hotels in this city, and who provided carriages to take us to the monument. The committee did its work well, and we are all well pleased at the way New York cared for us.

Had it not been for the raw wind there might have been more comfort in listening to the addresses and in viewing the parade, but Nature and not New York is accountable for that. The parade was excellent from a military standpoint, and everything moved with precision. It was a feature which I enjoyed very much.

We have not a word of complaint to offer, only congratulations and our thanks. We were received and cared for with utmost courtesy.

Senator Kyle, South Dakota.—I am glad that I have some. The display was far beyond my expectations. It was one of the grandest events that has occurred in the history of the city. The parade was excellent from a military standpoint, and everything moved with precision. It was a feature which I enjoyed very much.
